

Untitled Document

Is higher education really necessary? Okay, I can hear the collective gasp. A question such as

University is seen as such a lofty goal that the entire education system focuses on getting

Surely everyone in their right mind would want a career that they love. Then why is it that

"We are educating people out of their creativity," said education advisor, Sir Ken Robinson

You do, of course, realise that there are many amazing educators who believe the same

And we're not just talking school here; university lecture halls are filled with students full

It's kind of difficult to imagine any of those students jumping up, shouting, like Archimedes

Do you think that the average student in today's educational system is instilled with a sense

Instead we moved in a linear direction that focuses on pieces of paper which proclaim

If you're lucky this job will enable you to pay off the debt incurred while earning your pi

And we take this for granted as the natural order of things. We do not doubt that a good

And still people want this very same thing for their children. We've become so obsessed with

Being human means that we have the need to explore what we're good at and to search

Tribe membership "helps people become more themselves, leading them toward a greater

As long as you don't think that tribe membership should be earned by something you can